March Newsletter

We're very proud to have brought to you four exhibitions already this year. Phew! It's been a blast. Therefore the stunning exhibition we opened recently in Margaret River, Back to Nurture, presented a great opportunity to take a few days off with my family. I am always amazed at how relaxed I feel driving out of the city; you know I love living and working inner city but I also enjoy slowing down the pace. On that note, I am bringing my attention to you, our subscribers, with clear communication plus access to your 'social photos' from this year's events - I'll explain later

Congratulations to Yvonne Howard for winning the Inspired by Nature exhibition doorprize of Arimia Wines.

What's On

As an Interactive Arts subscriber you receive regular special offers of exclusive opening night invitations to all our events therefore due to their increased frequency this newsletter will now be published on a quarterly basis instead of monthly and the opening function invitations will be sent individually so you receive bite-size, valuable information in your inbox from Interactive Arts.

Tips n Hints

Dealing with Large Wall Spaces and Art

Often a large wall space (e.g. 5 m width x 3 m height) can be intimidating for a number of reasons:

Is a large piece the only option?

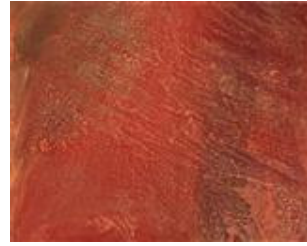

A large piece doesn't fit the atmosphere you want to create

You already have small pieces available but they seem too small

You don't think a large piece fits your budget

Yes often a large piece can be sourced to fill a large space appropriately however it isn't the only option:

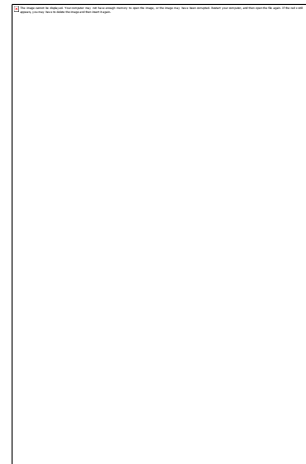

Can you define different 'zones' using the wall? One example we experienced is a reception desk set back 1 metre along the wall. The front of the desk is the client area and behind is work or corporate area. Therefore put the artwork in the client area for those in the entrance to enjoy and your corporate imagery (logo etc) behind the desk.

Feature Artist

Kay Merrin

Please make welcome to the Interactive Arts Creative Community, Kay Merrin. Kay is a master of a range of mediums which allows her to bring us welcome surprises and fresh imagery along her creative journey. An artist that will keep you on your toes.

PS This afternoon I received an unexpected invitation to participate in the Art Melbourne 2009 Art Fair next month. To be able to represent our Western Australia Artist Members by taking 20 pieces, we need to raise $10,000 in the next 2 days to participate. Therefore due to the short time scale, I thought I'd ask you for our help; if you're thinking of buying a piece anyway from us, I'd simply encourage you to do it this week. This is an exciting opportunity to showcase our artists on a national scale - thanking you for your support. Will let you know how we go...
